

PMP CERTIFICATION REVIEW COURSE (40hr)

With over 250,000 Project Management Professionals worldwide, the Project Management Institute's certification program is now a standard across all industries. Becoming a certified Project Management Professional (PMP®) involves meeting certain education and experience requirements, and passing a 200-question exam. (More details about PMP certification from www.pmi.org) The key to passing the exam is to understand PMI's view of project management. This means reviewing and understanding PMI's Body of Knowledge (PMBOK®), and becoming familiar with how PMI expects project managers to apply that knowledge. In most cases, this requires PMP-candidates to become familiar with new concepts during their PMP exam preparation, and/or to "unlearn" practices they have picked up over the years.

Who should take this course?

Course participants should be familiar with the certification process, and meet the PMP experience requirements prior to attending.
